Oh well, I can live with that.

Another thing related to bar is that after the new Chameleon style that was introduced lately, if you use ToolButton outside of a ToolBar, it has a different look. Its border is a lot thicker. A little diversity doesn't hurt, but during my summer holiday, I installed U++ on a computer, where these borders were extremely thick. No other application had such thick buttons, so I don't think it was related directly to some custom windows skin. I'm sorry, but I forgot about the issue back then, and I didn't take a screenshot.
