I use a very simple graphical Control already in several applications. Once it became necessary to store photos in the database. The following application was necessary to quickly write to the database image of the goods. Thus was born the idea to create a simple control for storing and editing images in the database.
Maybe it's too easy to make it a separate control. But I was so comfortable. Perhaps newcomers this control seem too useful. (I'll be glad if the leaders of UPP include it as standard control in TheIde)
