Thanks Mirek!

You mentioned that there are some folks working on making the U++ lib build standalone with VC. Is this going to be officially supported in future releases? Also, does this limitation exist for Linux as well?

I've been looking for some doc on creating custom widgets. Perhaps I have missed it. Would someone be so kind as to point me to any reference material on the subject?

Would it be possible to create the sizer container widget that I spoke of by overriding some kind of layout or draw function?

Thanks,
Gerry
