Just to have fun, some words about C++ from The-God-Of-Free-Whatever-Anything-You-Know - Linus Torvalds

Well, I did read (a part of) that thread.... interesting stuff.

extremistic. I can agree that one likes a language more than others, but saying that others are bullshit IMO doesn't solve problems nor apports something constructive to the discussion.

Second, I think I'll give D language a shot

Third, I think more and more that the usual argument of C supporters that "C++ is BS, because get much spare time to check my code for bugs or to enhance it. Such arguments make me think that if one does all the job in assembler, it will be surely bug free .
