bytefield wrote on Sun, 30 December 2007 13:33Hi It seems that for moment the wiki isn't needed. Mainly documentation comes with TheIde. You may see the examples and figure out how these work, than make some programs(TheIde have autocompletion which really help).
Well, if you will be the maintainer, you absolve me from removing wiki spamm(see wiki-pages history). Thanks.

(hope you understand what i want to say)
The English language is for me the strangest strange language ;

Hi bytefield,

First of all I understand what you're saying, your english isn't that bad

There is definitely enough material to work on, especially through examples. And Assist++ kicks ass. But a wiki would contribute more to the metadata about upp. Things that wouldn't make the normal documentation. But as you say; the decision lies with Mirek.
