After installation of beta2 in the automatic setup the SDL directory is not pre-filled, although the sdl is installed together with upp into C:\upp\sdl. ("$installdir/sdl")

So, why should user select this manually?

This makes the SDL example to fail during compilation, after setting the SDL directory in Setup/Automatic setup... it works without problem.

(well, it does nasty things to window positions in dual monitor setup, but that's way out of scope from my current testing of compilation and running examples)
