
Subject: Ubuntu 8.04

Posted by bytefield on Fri, 25 Apr 2008 20:26:23 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Have you tried Ubuntu 8.04?

After 2 hours of downloads and updates (~upgrade) (due to their servers overloading), finally I have it installed.

At startup I've got some reports about few applications crashing (u++ work out of box), even with new themes Chameleon is doing his excellent job.

What you get with this version?

- a fresh Firefox 3 Beta 5 version (+ incompatibility with some plug-ins ex. del.icio.us)
- some new wallpapers
- Clearlooks theme changed a bit
- Human theme expanded with 2 new styles: Human-Clearlooks and Human-Murines
- some new (maybe not useful) programs, installed by default
- latest version of Gnome, more secure(with PolicyKit) and stable (don't forget initial applications crashes)

From programmer perspective you get nothing special, unless you install Ultimate++ .
Happy Ubuntu!
