Qt guys already have synced the newest webkit which will be available in qt 4.5. I think webkit is better as it seems to be more lightweight and developed much quicker than gecko. Probably cost of first port is quite big, but cost of maintaing it should be a way smaller. Anyway if I had free time I would port it

I might have a look at it myself, I need a project . No promises though, as you say it's quite a lot of work. Or we could try and get some sort of group effort going.
