well, I was just thinking to start an svn add-on for theide... I'm in favour of a server-based repository, imho shared repos depends too much on how often people shares them. And don't see very much advantage on use a shared system as git and then setup a server based repository... But that's only my opinion. I looked also over Mercurial some time ago... nice stuff too, in some ways superior to git, but also a shared repository.

Ciao
