Thank you for testing.

Sorry, I have not answered earlier, I had vacations .

I had to generate the Makefile with modifications quite quickly before my holidays, so they are not perfect, but should serve as a kind of minimal starting point on *NIX systems.

For example I think of getting system information from 'uname' output and react on the result accordingly concerning library locations etc.

Thank you for your hints, I will take them into account ...

A Google search on the link error (searched for `pixman_format_supported_destination`) revealed a library version problem maybe you are in the same situation.
