That's exactly what I'm using right now, but it is only a temporary solution since it has some display bugs as it is.

Since the control reacts differently depending on which part you clicked (the option or outside of it), it will always highlight the empty text from the option and color the rest gray. This is not a high priority task for me to get it fixed, but it about a two weeks it would be great to have it working. I don't have time this week to look into OptionTree, but I'll try to fix it myself when I'll have time (or I really need it).
