
Subject: Re: Does the provided upp.spec works for you and on which distro?
Posted by mirek on Wed, 27 Aug 2008 14:15:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I understand the point about this being a little bit waste of time.

However, my point about this is that releasing each night will keep release scripts in "good shape". Of course, there will not be thousands to test it, but even if single user tests specific .rpm from time to time, he can detect packaging bugs.

I am sort of speaking from experience (2008.1 release). It is always very tedious process to "refurbish" all release methodology after 6 months.

Besides, it is not our time that will be wasted. I do not care if server works hard for one or two hours when I sleep

Mirek
