Subject: Re: Documentation how-to...
Posted by mirek on Sun, 07 Sep 2008 11:38:51 GMT

luzr wrote on Thu, 04 September 2008 18:35cbpporter wrote on Thu, 04 September 2008 16:15Quote:
Just like in most word-processors. Hitting backspace concatenates paragraphs, means you have to decide the style of result. It is logical that the style of paragraph you are in is chosen.

Yes, sure, merging is OK. But not when my current paragraph is empty.

Could be a good point. I will check with openoffice and if it behaves this way, I can adopt RichEdit too...

Mirek

OK, OpenOffice seems to use the style of first paragraph in ALL cases (no difference between Delete at the end of line and Backspace at the beginning of other).

That of course is the simplest solution. I will comment current more complex logic out and we will see if it is any better

Mirek