I am mostly OK with recent Size layout.

Notes:

Maybe we should not call sections "detail", I mean instead of "Method detail" I would use simple word "Method" or perhaps "Methods".

Returns a Size_ with it's dimension equal to the square of the dimension of a.

is IMHO quite confusion and/or incorrect description

Also, now thinking about it... Maybe it would be a good idea to "upgrade" "breakline" and "breakhead" styles to sentinels of one description. In that case, "breakhead" should be something like "section end" and "breakline" as "section begin".

This 'section' (better word needed) would be then used when description of single code item is required to delimit it.
