I used CtrlsImg directly because there is no way to access that static chCtrlsImg array from the outside and I don't want Windows specific solution.

Ops, of course. I have posted it just as example of altering Option/Switch!

You ARE supposed to use CtrlsImg directly.

As you can see, the LabelBox is not skinned yet, because it uses manual line drawing for it's look. What solution would you prefer to enable skinning for this widget?

If I would have known, I would have done it already

So far, it looks quite acceptable to provide just those predefined styles there and color...
