Subject: Re: MSSQL binary data
Posted by mirek on Sun, 23 Nov 2008 21:28:34 GMT

captainc wrote on Sun, 23 November 2008 14:55Those are good benefits. I'm interested, what kind of database do you use for binary data? What kind of settings do you set on the database? What is the schema like?

Ehm, usually I use DB per customer request.

Over time, I was storing binary data into Oracle, PGSQL and now in MSSQL. In fact, any single commercial app I have ever developed did it.

No special setting on DB. It should handle it just fine.

Nothing special about the schema either. It is just large binary column, that is all.

In fact, so far the only 'special' thing about large binary data in DB was the way of moving those data to DB - SqlRaw and no SqlExp.

Mirek