"1.theide doesn't have "New file" menu option. That means if I started my app without *.lay file (not all apps are GUI!) , I have to create it from outside or copy from somewhere. Stupid waste of time. I really started hating that ultimate "underfeature" of Ultimate++."

Of course you can add a new file from inside theide: right click somewhere in the the file list panel (under the packages list) and select "Insert package directory file(s)". You can either select an existing file or when typing a new name have the file created.

Theide definitely use an other way of all other ide and it also took me some time to figure this out.

Hope it helps,
Victor
