

---

Subject: Re: Navigot bar: 1 issue, 1 suggestion
Posted by Mindtraveller on Tue, 31 Mar 2009 19:23:31 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Borland C++ Builder had very nice feature. When you press Control key and drag mouse through any word in your code, mouse cursor becomes a hand and the word itself becomes a hyperlink. Clicking this hyperlink led to declaration/definition of this token. This was extremely comfortable feature.

I think that little addition to it - smtf. like Alt + clicking token - should open TheIDE Help with search with this word.

IMO the main problem about Help is that it consists of large pages and has no navigation through found items on the help page.

---