It's possible I might try to document something as I learn it - really it'd be good if something like the Wiki could be used, to try and get lots of people contributing as they learn things e.g. one Wiki page for each widget, one for each core class, one for each reference app, one for each example.

wikis are rubbish. I don't know any of them which has normal searching capabilities, navigation etc. Why can't you use this forum as a wiki? It has editing. Other communities do that. And you have alerts on updates and discussions visible! What else do you need?

Well, in any case, I can always pick interesting documents anywhere and copy them to Topic++ (and that way, also to website).
