I needed a HTTP server so I thought I'll look over cmdsrv. But it does not work. It constructs the result correctly, but it will never get to the browser which will hang waiting for the response.

And after first request the server.wait call will no longer wait 1 second; I'm guessing because of the outstanding request, but I'm no expert on socket timeouts. (BTW, this is a strange way to do a server: doesn't it introduce up to a second lag? Or maybe it exits sooner if a request is gotten).
