Subject: SVN Sync - Commit Message - DocEdit Please?
Posted by jeremy_c on Sat, 06 Jun 2009 01:04:39 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I am wondering if there is a reason why EditField was choosen as the control instead of a 4-6 line DocEdit? Almost all of my commit messages are always over 1 line and cramming them into 1 line makes my commit messages pretty hard to read/understand.

When working with other open source projects as well, commit messages are typically more than one line.

I worked on changing this and I got it to be a DocEdit control rather easy, but the size was not correct. I could make the row height be that of 6 lines, but the control still appeared as 1 line high, even though it was indeed a DocEdit and I could add multiple lines in.

Is there some reason that it shouldn't be a DocEdit?

Thanks,

Jeremy