Subject: Re: Page Totals in a table?
Posted by jeremy_c on Fri, 23 Oct 2009 20:46:48 GMT

sergeynikitin,

Are you speaking of the table header? I see how to accomplish that but what I don't see how to do is making running page totals. luzr is semi-working. It allows me to insert text into the footer of the page when a new page is created but it has a few issues that I'm trying to work out right now.

If you see another way in the docs to have running totals in the table, I'd like to know more. I cannot find anything but header information being transfered from page to page and that would be static, as it simply defines how many rows are header rows and then just duplicates those rows on subsequent pages.

Jeremy