hi there, i was playing around, with the wish to have a ParentCtrl, to which i can add things and which is able to have scrolling. from some other posts i got the point from mirek, to use a pane ctrl containing all the controls and another control that can "spot" into that pane at a position and size, determined by user and the scrollbars.

just take a look on the attached project, maybe you will find it usefull. its done as a template. so you can also use other controls as pane..not only ParentCtrl

i'd be glad if this could be extended to fit Upp standards and maybe integrated into the bazaar
