koldo,

thanks for your quick pointers.

strange - layout designer now just appears on one click - i swear, there was no reaction after ide installation, yesterday... nevermind, it made me ask silly questions, now it works and wow, this image buffer thing is really fast. also seems to be the right way to render my fractals... still wonder what the pros regard as the simple way to watch the rendering evolve while having a responsive window?

is it possible to call event processing from within my rendering loop? would this be a good idea? which method would i call?
