Quote:When I need a new file I click on "insert any file(s)" and write its name. I'am not aware of this absolute reference... and still I countinue to not understand in what the problem consist (I do not see problem when all work as I want   ).
Perhaps I have understood. I should click instead on "insert package directory file(s)". Now the absolute path in *upp disappeared. If this is true, what advantage I achieve in this last method? Which connection has it with the include file?

Luigi