This looks like three packages rather than two.
1. upp
2. theide
3. theide-nogtk

Wouldn't it be easier and simpler to have just two.

For those that are concerned about disk space the gtk dependencies could be removed with a simple script.
theide-nogtk would need to be built by the user but what percentage of users would need/want this? I am not familiar with this so I may be wrong.
