Quote:(BTW, I think releases under roadmap should have dates, so anyone checking the roadmap can get idea of the progress in time. At least for new entries.)
Could you detail a little bit more your proposal
I don't think this can be much more detailed I will fetch the dates of releases from forum announcements and write them in the Roadmap page. From now on, we should just make sure that we write there a date when we create new release.

PS: Done and committed. By the way, release 1952 was announced in the forum, but was missing on the roadmap page. I resurrected the text from older revision and put it back.

Ah ok, now I understand.
