I think it would be then ok to give everyone permissions to change .upp files, just like we can change .tpp now.

Or maybe add some .uppt where only translation strings would be stored. (although generally I don't like clutter of project directories with obscure automated files (hey "init", did you hear me?))