 it's not a reason, but we have our own IDE, our(STL) NTL, our own Image format [with hot-spots], site is made with U++ made tools think of google, they also have a whole bunch of things they offer, but some things they simply use from others (keep established standards) i.e. the googlecode svn repositories, only provide a mask for it, just as u++ does, or think of youtube / google video.

it's not only important to redesign and 'reinvent' things, but also to know what is worth keeping.

BTW: GIT
i'm using it for quite a while now, and can't without anymore i enjoy the flexibility of branching merging and handling iin general. i still imagine mirek could profit from that more than from svn.
