Thanks for the information. Mirek gave me a URL to the primary server a year ago but I didn't know where it went to until now. I updated the file and committed the .tpp and .tppi files using tortoise svn. Maybe you could check if I got something wrong some time. Tortoise said the files committed ok but for some reason it's left the icon for the files showing as "modified". Should I be able to commit these files directly from theIde?

Chances are I'll want to commit other documentation stuff sometime. Does that mean I should use the primary server and forget about google code?

Is upp able to do any conversion from other document formats into .tpp format?
