

---

Subject: Re: operator<=< in tree control reference example

Posted by gprentice on Thu, 06 Jan 2011 11:26:28 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

yep, I know SetData is a virtual function but a call to a virtual function is "virtual" only when the call is made on a pointer or reference - except, I've just looked up a C++ book I have and in a member function (such as operator<=<) an unqualified call is also virtual because it's equivalent to this->SetData - hmm, I probably knew that once but I've long since forgotten!

Graeme

---