I tested the executable in Wine, and it works like a charm. Just the cursor looks a bit weird, should it really have that yellowish tip?

Well, it is just so that I could tell that I am now displaying FB cursor (painting in FB), not Win32 one

You forgot to add the Wayland display server to your list The drawing part will be probably quite similar to framebuffer, so it shouldn't be very difficult.

Yes, right. I am all for replacing X11, OTOH it does not seem like pressing matter right now. Besides, if we get "tighter" gtk, we get wayland for free.
