Another option would be to give him all .t files from upp project (that one would be my preferred solution....), but then most special chars are converted to \xxx codes, which makes translation almost impossible from outside theide.

If he uses a utf8 editor he will be able to see the characters correctly (I assume utf8 is your default). Under linux it is very easy to find such an editor.

Another possibility is to send him the whole theide with the translation.t. Theide will be used as editor.
