I don't insist, i suggest on having such a selector on top.

I would prefer your idea of detecting it by the browser settings or maybe by a cookie.

Even better would be that it doesn't change by itself but this needs an update of the t++ files (or system) because the language appendix of the hyperlinks in the .tpp files is hardcoded, would be better to generate it dynamically for all topic links.

Additionally it would be needful to make sure if someone opens the forum the language setting don't get lost.
