FYI: I am afraid that this Htmls stuff becomes deprecated. It is not bad idea, but I guess for real-world web development, you need to have something that html designer understands. That is why we are going to templates...

OTOH, perhaps some nice table generalisation, which would possibly include QTF outputs as well, would be nice.