Happy New Year to everyone!
Times goes, and U++ is becoming more and more mature and widely used in commercial applications. We should create place to collect all job proposals: both freelance and office.
I also believe that U++ jobs is crucial for spreading U++ among C++ professionals.

If you think U++ is not used in production - this is not true at all.
Personally I have a job proposal for russian freelancer once per every 4-5 months. Other people may have job proposals too.

So I propose adding U++ subforum to some place in forum central page (preferably not in the bottom). It can be good starting point for future.

What do you think?
