Hi,

I want to be able to resize columns in an ArrayCtrl to fit the contents of the column - like when you double-click on the gap between two column headers in Excel.

I have set about this but I appear to be missing elements:
=> there is no double-click event for a column header (so I am using a popup menu on right-click just now)
=> I can't find the font for the array - only for the header tab

Are there any examples of this? I can't help thinking that this must have been done many times before.

Nick
