Hi!
I like a lot the project templates for Skylark where you can select the database and it creates a default database web app.

I'd like to see this feature in CtrlLib app dialog too. Like you select the database or "no database" option and the project gets created with the code for SQL connection already done.

It saves a lot of time when you're quickly experimenting with databases. I suppose it's not a very hard feature to add, but useful.
