I think U++ makers will be able to answer it best. I couldn't find anything on the manual but I would assume U++ String will be something similar to C++ std::string about which are the following comments found.
I'm not a U++ maker, but I'm pretty sure that String is limited by size of int type, that is 2 Gb, so no problem for usually displayed files If you need to display anything longer, you'd have to use streaming or something similar anyway...
