Hi Mirek,

That great, now I'll be even more addicted to NTL...

Just to make sure, InVector stands for "insert vector"?

IMHO it would be great if the name of the new containers contained the information how it differs from the regular ones. I think the biggest advantage of this will be the range searches, so what about something like RangeIndex, RangeVector and RangeArray?

BTW: Will you tell us how it works, or is it left as an exercise for the reader? I suspect you told me once about this idea in past over a beer, but I want spoil it just yet for other curious programmers here

Best regards,
Honza
