Well, I would say we are not that far from that, at least for physical prints. You can replace automatic centering with Margin (in fact, it should rather be called "offset" or perhaps "topleft") and physical prints should be ok (but take into account that with real printers, there will be up to 5 mm difference from one sheet printed to another).

After that, I am willing to change PDF export too to comply, but I guess it might require some new parameters to Report/PdfDraw.
