Will there be a "Upp namespace" in the future ?

Upp has so many classes and functions,

Sometimes I am worry about the identifier collision problem...

More likely. It is planned for a long time, the real question is how it will work with some template techniques... (inline friend injection etc...)

BTW, this is one of areas community definitely could help - we need experiment. If you have time, please try it... (with all supported compilers) - and report all issues.
