

---

Subject: Re: Materials for Articles : "Ultimate++ as an IDE and debugger"

Posted by fudadmin on Sun, 30 Jul 2006 14:46:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

U++ history should be something like that?:

Ultimate's U++ "oldest" classes (Value, Date, Time, Nuller, Ref, Sql, OracleSession) started gaining shape in 1998(?) as a supplement to MS MFC for Oracle GUI applications. At that time already Ultimate's authors were using NTL containers as a replacement for STL containers.

---