Hello,

The thread title make evident my confusion about the topic. :blush:
I tried Skylark for first time and it works although not how I hoped.

I am used to PHP scripts. I put them in some folder of a server (not mine) and call them by http request. I've done even some complex program with PHP+MYSQL.
It seems Skylark is quite different. It is itself a server (if I have understood) and not just an executable that wake up and performs some action :roll: . How to use it?
Do I need to save the executable in some directory? I suspect I need specific privilege on my ISP server.

I am very sorry if my questions looks silly :)

Luigi
