I've been researching this and haven't seen a clean solution in the forum. And its kind of important to a couple of my projects.

My coming projects will have many controls on each layout (window/form) and on each I need to have a logo image at the lower left corner.
Some layouts will have a communication or hardware status indicator that is actually two images that change from visible to not-visible.

None of the examples I've found displayed an image on a layout with other controls.

Any examples or advice appreciated.
