Subject: Re: Can we get the private members of TreeCtrl made protected?
Posted by mirek on Sun, 12 Jul 2015 07:51:08 GMT

I do not know. Generally, things are private to maintain narrow interface. If they become protected, they become part of interface.

OTOH, I like the functionality you propose. I suggest adding this to regular TreeCtrl as option... (files please?)

Mirek