Subject: Re: SVN source
Posted by dolik.rce on Tue, 01 Sep 2015 08:01:35 GMT

Tom1 wrote on Tue, 01 September 2015 09:07I'm working on Linux Mint with a fresh TheIDE now and selected: Setup > Source management.. > Source management settings: SVN repository to get the latest SVN source. However, this appears to be stuck on revision 8845. My guess is that it is pointing at the google code SVN mirror, which is read-only now.

Hi Tom

Yes, the default repository is still the one on googlecode. You can change this for now by selecting "Custom repository" and clicking on the "Setup custom repository..." where the address can be changed. Setting it to svn://www.ultimatepp.org/upp/trunk should work.

I will change the default settings as soon as Mirek decides if and where he creates public mirror.

Best Regards,
Honza