Hi there,
I have been asked to send a report directly to a specific printer. I understand how to send a report directly to the default printer, but in this case I should send the report to a printer that is not the default one. I know this makes little sense - generally speaking - , but in this case the application is installed in few PCs that I manage, so printer names are set by me. I told user that choosing the printer in the dialog window does not seem a big deal, but this chap is a bigmouth and told that in VB x.y you can do that, so I am investigating.
Thanks,
Gio
