Subject: Re: Wonders of C++14
Posted by mirek on Wed, 07 Dec 2016 08:01:21 GMT

Exactly....

Anyway, it makes sense (sort of). It is return value from st, so it has to exist. You cannot reference Foo outside st, but you get 'unspecified type' returned from 'st', which you can (of course) assign to auto variable.