Hi,

I'm still using it in a product for scrolling a histogram plot on X11 and WinXP clients. For WinVista, Win7, Win8 and Win10 I have implemented a dual `::SetSurface()` method for similar scrolling effect. (The reason for two approaches is obtaining the optimal performance on each platform.)

If you are not in hurry with it, maybe you could keep it there for a few more years... (?)

It's not a must for me though. I can use the current U++ for those old systems (still in use by our clients) until they are phased out and replaced with new ones.

Best regards,

Tom
